This Fact Sheet will look at the keys to a successful transition from hospital Family caregivers often feel unprepared to provide care, have inadequate knowledge to deliver proper care, and receive little guidance from the formal health care providers. Who are these family caregivers, what do they do, and what harm do they face? Spouses must make adjustments and define new boundaries.

Constructing the reality of recovery: Family home care management strategies caregivers were interviewed for the study; seven participants chose to be interviewed in their homes and one participant was interviewed in an alternate location.
