Innumerable Jews were thus saved. Ho was from Hunan, a province whose natives were known for their outspokenness, courage and hot tempers.

Great condition with minimal wear, aging, or shelf wear. But a visa, as proof of destination, was necessary for Jews to be allowed to leave Austria. Feng Shan Ho was one of the first diplomats to save Jews by issuing them visas to escape the Holocaust. This so angered the ambassador that he sent a subordinate to Vienna on the pretext of investigating rumors that the Consulate was "selling" visas.
